

Disclaimer

All statements about profit or income, as well as examples of profit or income that may be posted on our company's websites, are only a forward-looking assessment of possible earnings and do not guarantee its receipt. Considering the expected profit as guaranteed, you also assume the risk of not receiving it.

If you specify a specific amount of income and use it in relation to a person or type of business as the amount they earn, you are not guaranteed to receive similar income. If you consider the expected profit to be guaranteed, you also assume the risk of not receiving it.

Any statements or representations posted on our company's websites regarding possible profit generation are not considered average earnings.

There is no guarantee that any prior success or performance of prior activities related to revenue generation can be used as an indication of subsequent financial results.

The amount of income and its monetary value are based on many factors. We do not have information about the success of your activities in the future, as well as about you personally, your personal data, the ethical principles used, business skills or algorithms of activity, and we do not guarantee the resulting probability of receiving any large, small or even any monetary amounts. We do not guarantee that you will receive similar amounts.

Doing business over the Internet and making a profit from it involves unknown risks. The decision to engage in such activities cannot be based on any information posted on our products, related to the services provided by us, provided on our company's websites, and should be made solely with the possible significant losses or non-profit.

All products and services of our company are intended solely for educational or informational purposes, and must be used with care and under the supervision of qualified professionals. Before starting an activity based on this or other information, you need to consult an accountant, lawyer or professional consultant.

Consumers of our products and services, visitors to our company's websites, should rely on their own common sense and rely on their own strength when making decisions regarding the conduct of business. All information provided regarding products and services must be independently evaluated by qualified professionals. Our information, products and services provided on our company's websites are subject to a thorough analysis and evaluation before making a business decision.

You hereby agree that our company is not responsible for the correctness or inaccuracy of your decisions regarding the conduct of business, regarding any information provided by our company, its products or services